

Council Gold Prospect

David Coil, PhD, Director¹, Elizabeth Lester PhD², Bretwood "Hig" Higman, PhD, Executive Director³
contact@groundtruthtrekking.org

Last Modified: 12th May 2013

Background

The Council Gold Prospect was an early-stage exploration project located on the Seward Peninsula within the Council Mining District, an area that historically produced a significant amount of placer gold. Exploration in the 295 square kilometer area was focused on locating the bedrock ("lode") source of this gold.

The Council Gold Prospect was a joint project by Millrock Resources and Kinross Gold Corporation but Kinross dropped their option on the project in early 2013 and Millrock followed in May 2013.

The subsurface rights for Council Gold, Bluff, and other Seward Peninsula properties belong to the Bering Straits Native Corporation (BSNC), with whom Millrock had an exploration agreement. However, the Council Native Corporation (CNC) owns the surface rights for the Council Gold property, and has been negotiating annual surface agreements with Millrock since 2008.

Current status

In May 2013 this project appears to have been terminated.

Date Created: 11th August 2011

¹David Coil, PhD, Director;

²Elizabeth Lester PhD;

³Bretwood "Hig" Higman, PhD, Executive Director; contact@groundtruthtrekking.org

